Dr. Mihic completed his undergraduate training at McGill University prior to pursuing medical school at the University of Ottawa. He is currently an Internal Medicine Resident at the University of Calgary. His primary research interests include clinical and economic evaluation of treatment strategies for arrhythmias.